

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) for the Stockholm Junior Water Prize (SJWP)

When will the SJWP International Final be held?

World Water Week in Stockholm, August 16-22, 2009

How do the students become eligible to participate in the SJWP International Final?

The individual or group winner of the UK SJWP Competition will go on to participate in the SJWP International Final.

When will the UK SJWP Competition be held?

In April 2009 and the winning project will be announced in May.

What is the latest date that projects can be submitted?

April 15, 2009 is the latest date.

What age do the students need to be?

Students who are between 15-20 years of age can participate.

Can the student participate if they are younger than 15 years old?

They may participate if they are going to be 15 years old by the end of 2009.

Can university students participate?

No

Can any school enter?

Yes

What topics can the projects include?

The projects should be within the fields of technology, natural and social science. They should also be aimed at solving water environment problems or improving water management in schools, communities or water basins. This may include water quality, water resources management, water protection and water and wastewater treatment.

Do the projects need to be scientific in nature?

No, any aspect of the water sector is acceptable.

What are the project guidelines?

Students ought to prepare a written project and a project display. The written project should include an abstract, a main report and a biography of the student(s), all of which may not exceed 15 pages. The project display should include two posters.

How many students can be involved in a team?

No more than 3 students can work in a team.

Will my school be able to call on the expertise of CIWEM members to assist the students?

Yes, after a school interest form or an entry form has been submitted, a member of the closest CIWEM branch will be in touch with the school and students to help with basic questions and to develop the project.

Other Questions:

Email Paul Horton at paul@ciwem.org